Fort Gordon to become Fort Eisenhower in Historic Ceremony

FORT GORDON, Ga. – Fort Gordon is officially redesignating to Fort Eisenhower on Friday, Oct. 27 at 10 a.m. during a ceremony on the installation's Barton Field.

The last of nine Army installations to be renamed, the name change was announced July 11 by the U.S. Army Cyber Center of Excellence Public Affairs Office in a release stating the new namesake honors General and President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his admiration for the Augusta area, a community that he found solace in throughout his presidential years.

“Rising from second lieutenant to commander-in-chief, Eisenhower’s extensive, innovative, and effective military experience and leadership shaped our modern world,” said U.S. Army Cyber Center of Excellence and Fort Gordon Commanding General, Maj. Gen. Paul Stanton. “His dedication to ensuring equal rights for Soldiers and citizens alike continues to be an example and inspiration for the present and future Soldiers of the Army he so faithfully served and decisively led. General Eisenhower epitomizes those values we continue to instill in our Soldiers today.”

Attending the ceremony are friends and family of the Eisenhowers and leaders from across the Department of Defense, including granddaughters Susan and Mary Jean Eisenhower, Secretary of the Army, Christine E. Wormuth and Chair of the Congressional Naming Commission, Retired Navy Adm. Michelle Howard.

In addition to ceremonial events, attendees will have the opportunity to view a variety of static displays, showcasing various military equipment ranging from World War II era to today’s cutting-edge technology, symbolizing the evolution of the Army and the installation.
